

Climate Up Close

Thank you for a spectacular year.

In our first year making climate science accessible to a broad audience, Climate Up Close held 9 events and talked with 500 people in Central Pennsylvania.

Attendees said their eyes were opened by what happens when sea ice melts, the impact of different emissions sources, and the scientific consensus on climate change.

Our eyes were opened by the curiosity, insight, and enthusiasm with which people invited us into their communities—and by how enthusiastic people were in seeking to expand their understanding of climate change.

These moments were a direct result of your support of Climate Up Close. Together, we wove a more scientifically-based climate narrative in Central Pennsylvania and gave people direct access to climate scientists. We look forward to many more events in 2020.

Here's to an exciting
2020 of climate outreach!
